COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) - The Bureau of Unemployment Compensation in a report issued today said Ohio's labor market is being affected by a midsummer lull, with a slow-up of automobile and steel manufacturing the most sig-

The report said that April-May-June employment, statewide, has remained almost level at 3.1 million, on non-farm jobs, and that July figures, not yet available, are likely to be down moderately, especially in manufacturing. Layoffs in August suggest more of the same.

In the automobile and steel picture, the report said this: "Motor vehicles and equipment employed 94,000 Ohioans last February. By June the total had dropped 6,000. With model - changeover layoffs thereafter, and low production scheduled for August, significant improvement seems unlikely be fore September - October. Blast furnaces and steelmills in Ohio employed 122,000 last February. By June they had dropped by more than 14,000. Since the automotive industry is steel's biggest customer, the down-trend appears likely to continue, at least until

The down-trend also was noted in machinery manufacturing, with 8.000 Ohio workers laid off between February and June by producers of electrical and non-electotal was about 297,000. Metal fabricators released 9,000 from their February total of 144,000.

Wrong 'Numbers' Ring The Bell

The cowardly telephone calls to which the chief of police and at least one of his patrolmen have been subjected provide another impelling reason why every effort should be made to kick the "numbers" rackets out of East Liverpool.

Whether the work of "numbers" figures or just plain "cranks", the blame must be laid at the feet of the former - if there were no numbers, there would be no such incidents, cranks or no cranks.

Not only Chief Radeschi and Patrolman McDaniel have been plagued by the calls, but their wives as well, with threats being included against their children. There are few lower than those who do their vicious sniping behind the protection of anonymity.

Such is the trademark, however, of the parasites who feast on those obsessed with the naive feeling that they can beat the

The phone threats could backfire on the syndicate. Incensed by the sneaky attacks, Chief Radeschi has promised to expand his crackdown. The numbers are a tough nut to crack, but arrests of the last few days indicate that results are possible by constant vigilance

In lashing back, Radeschi made a plea that residents who stumble onto tips that could help in the apprehension of numbers figures contact the police department quickly. The police know the "old-timer" writers, but are aware that new ones could be moving into the picture.

This is where you can help. Keep your eyes and ears open. You may uncover data pertinent to the investigations.

The heat should be kept on the numbers. They and their despicable operators are something East Liverpool can do without.

The Five Stars Still Shine

A curious thing is being revealed in the presidential election campaign so far.

This is the first time a President limited by law to two terms has had to be retired to private life and the first time since George Washington's day that a still-popular president has bowed out of office. The country is going to learn something from the experience.

What it has learned so far is the fate that awaits political opponents who belittle the stature of the President and ignore the circumstances of his retirement by pretending they are running him out of Washington.

MR. EISENHOWER is still popular enough to win re-election if permitted to seek it. Despite his past illnesses, he gives the impression he is dynamic enough to make any rival seem to be overmatched in a presidential campaign

He overshadows his associates in the field of leadership for the same reason he overshadowed his associates in militarism. He was not the Allies' greatest strategist, its greatest tactician, or its greatest diplomat. But the combination of his qualities made him the Allies' greatest leader - the man who could persuade other men to follow him as a matter of privilege.

The general's five stars still shine. He is still the greatest leader - not the greatest politician but plainly the greatest citizen.

Those who attack him personally must do so at their own risk. The risk is that they will look like pipsqueaks by comparison. Even Sen. Johnson, the Texas-size champion of legislative smoothies whose greatest triumph to date has been to rally his two-thirds majority to squelch civil rights legislation, made the mistake the other day of attacking President Eisenhower and, for his pains, seemed suddenly non-Texas-size.

Vice President Nixon has the most serious problem, because he must seek election in the shadow of the older man who has been his mentor. His problem is even worse than the problem of Sen. Kennedy, whom no one thinks of as a successor or a replacement but as a substitute

IF THE COUNTRY is tired of the leadership it has become accustomed to under Dwight Eisenhower - and this is the only campaign argument the Democrats can use -it can switch to Kennedy.

But if it has liked the Eisenhower leadership, it must welcome Richard Nixon, who has been Eisenhower's understudy.

Thus, the Democrats sooner or later, in one degree or another, must attack President Eisenhower to open the way for their own candidate. The task is not impossible, but its difficulties are manifest.

Those five stars still shine brighter than all those promises of something for nothing in the Democratic platform. The stars make the socialism look pretty shabby.

It's the same thing that happens to me when ever I get a new illness. In no time, dozens of people I never noticed before are showing the same symptoms.

An artifact is archelologist talk for a relic from ancient times. It is something primitive made by human workmanship that is primiclear, which will be true of artifacts a thousand years from now if, say, the archeologists dig up a yo-yo or an electronic brain with all the tubes gone.

My latest artifact is a piece of gray stone shaped like a pyramid. It is two inches high, with an indentation on one side bearing faint gouge marks as if it had been chewed on

I think it was an aboriginal teething stone, but others who have studied it think it may have been a kitchen knife - sharpener.

It also could have been an exercising stone, to strengthen the grip of a primitive office-seeker conditioning himself for an up-hill-anddown-dell campaign.

There is a deep gouge in another face of the artifact that looks as if it might have been chipped out by a spear. This suggests the artifact might have been used as a primitive sleep inducer, much as today's pugilists rely on fortifying their commissioners aren't watching. Some ancient may have clutched it in his fist during battle and caught a spear between his fingers.

This is the really stimulating thing about artifacts. You never know. Take this book, "Clean and Decent" that people have been chuckling about. It's a scholarly history of bathroom fixtures, and in one place it suggests that some artifacts now displayed on mantles and in museum cases may have started out in a dismally utilitarian

The only metal artifact I ever ran across turned out to be the tierod of a Model T Ford. I cherished another artifact made of potteryobviously primitive, with a quaint blue design. This was a fragment of something that could have been a sacrificial urn for storing the blood of young boys and maidens killed to appease angry gods.

However, another archeologist to whom I showed the fragment said it was a chunk out of a butter crock in common use back after Ulysses Grant's era, when junkies first took pride in cluttering up the premises now occupied by the Twillery. They have left upward of a thousand beer cans, beer bottles. wrecks of buggies, cars and small

Some day, all this stuff will be genuine artifacts. Generations from now, bright-eyed archeologists will pick up this junk and take it into the house to be viewed by the family. And the family will look bored and say, "Yes, yes, we know. You've found a nother artifact. haven't you. Bambi? # Congo Precedent

By David Lawrence

U. N. Intervenes In 'Internal' Affair

A far-reaching precedent in world affairs is being established in the Congo. An international military force is actually being ordered to intervene within an independent country to establish 'law and order.' The reason given is that "the complete restoration of law and order in the Republic of the Congo David Lawrence would effectively contribute to the maintenance of international peace

They came there as a result of incidents in Leopoldville, where dozens of Belgian women were raped by the troops of the very government that asked the United Nations forces to intervene.

Maybe an international force will some day have to enter Cuba to do a similar job of protection. The Organization of American States is at present the primary agency for the task in the western hemisphere and, for the time being, it is assumed the United Nations will refrain from intervention there.

UNITED NATIONS forces have been used heretofore to try to squelch a war between two parts of a given country.

It will be recalled that this was the basis of the entry of United Nations forces in Korea in the summer of 1950. The Soviets happened by acciand I always have preached chastity and morality to our children so we are shocked to be confronted with this problem.

We own some rental property. Last week my husband discovered our son and his girl, both college juniors, in one of our unrented his shoddy standards of behavior apartments. The girl was nonchalant and our son was defiant. He announced that there aren't any pure girls of marriageable age left.

He also told his father that moral standards have changed in the past 25 years. He said every fellow in his fraternity has been guilty of the same and the girls are not tramps, they're from the finest sororities.

Have things changed that much? Please comment.—URBANA.

The feeble excuse that "everybody is doing it" is a lot of eyewash. Your son is trying to weasel off the spot by ascribing to "everybody." Don't buy it.

And the notion that there are no pure girls of marriageable age left is undistilled garbage. It may be that he doesn't want to take the time or trouble to look for them but they do exist -and I wouldn't be surprised if some of them even belonged to "the finest sororities."

A. Spinal meningitis is inflammation of the cellophane-like covering of the spinal cord. Menin-gitis occurs when the spinal canal invaded by germs or virus. With modern drug therapy the outlook for a person with meningitis is far better than it was only a few years ago. In severe cases there may be some after effects but insanity is hardly one of them. Meningitis is not "handed down" or inherited.

Musial Slams 2-Run Homer In 12th As Cards Nip Bucs, 3-2

Los Angeles Blanks Reds; Braves Lose

By WHITNEY MARTIN

Associated Press Sports Writer Here's a warning to other National League clubs: When playing the St. Louis Cardinals don't go into extra innings. The old man in left field is liable to get tired standing around and blast one so he can go home.

The old man is Stan Musial. He's only 39, but that's antique as ball players go.

The personable fellow blasted one Thursday night when the Pittsburgh Pirates persisted in prolonging the game. In the 12th inning Stan the man smacked a Bob Friend pitch into the stands with a man on base to give the Cards a 3-2 decision and cut Pittsburgh's lead to four games. He had a pair of doubles earlier as a warmup

Los Angeles blanked Cincinnati 3-0 and San Francisco nipped Milwaukee 8-7 in other NL games. Chicago's Cubs and Philadelphia were not scheduled.

The sizzling Baltimore Orioles beat Detroit 6-1 and pulled within one game of the first place Yankees in the American League. Boston beat Cleveland 5-2 and Washington took Kansas City 5-4 in other AL games. The Yankees and Chicago had an open date.

Musial's home run Thursday night broke up a stirring pitching battle between Pittsburgh's Bob Friend (12-9) and the Cards' Ernie Broglio (14-5). Each went the distance, Broglio allowing eight hits and Friend seven.

Sandy Koufax was the whole show as the Dodgers blanked the Reds. Koufax, who seven times this year has fanned more than 10 batters in a game, struck out 13 and allowed only two hits.

The San Francisco Giants dropped Milwaukee to fourth place with their victory.

Police Seek Motive For Slaying In Miami

MIAMI, Fla. (AP)-Police from Miami to New York are seeking a possible motive for the savage killing of Joseph Mourey, 56, former butler to a silent film star and chauffeur for a general in World War II.

The identity of the nattilydressed Frenchman, here on a two-week vacation, was determined Thursday after his beaten, bullet-pierced body was found on a lonely, rutted road Wednesday. A resident reported hearing shots about 11 p. m.

Hope Hampton, actress for whom Mourey once worked, said in New York he was "a perfect butler and a perfect gentleman." Mourey also served as the late Gen. George C. Patton's chauffeur during the North African campaign of World War II.
